HAYES SCHENCK GIVEN FROM 2 TO 3 YEARS

Office of Justice of Peace Declared Forfeited.

BOUNTY FRAUDS ENDED

Howard Man's Withdrawal of Application for New Trial and Entering Plea of Guilty Enables Commonwealth to Winds up Cases.

Justice of the Peace Hayes Schenck, of Howard, convicted of fraud in probating pelts on which bounties were paid, and who last week withdrew his application for a new trial and plead guilty to nine additional indictments charging similar frauds, was on Monday sentenced on one charge, only, by Judge Quigley, as follows:

To forfeit his office as Justice of the Peace.

To pay a fine of $1 and costs of prosecution.

To undergo imprisonment in the Western Penitentiary at Pittsburgh for a term of not less than two years or more than three years.

Sentence was suspended on the nine remaining counts, the Court explaining that it would be guided by Schenck's behaviour on his return from the penitentiary. Schenck was taken to Pittsburgh on Wednesday.

Schenck had prepared himself for the prison sentence that he realized was inevitable. He had been under bail since his conviction, his bond following his plea of guilty being made in the sum of $1,000. Monday morning he came unattended to Bellefonte from his home in Howard. He was neatly dressed. He went direct from the train to the office of his counsel, Gettig & Bower, stopping now and then to chat with personal friends. He was called to the bar a few minutes after court had convened at 10 o'clock. With arms folded his listened in silence as Judge Quigley pronounced sentence. The Court said:—

"It isn't a pleasant task to pass sentence upon a man of your time along in life. Mr. Schenck you shouldn't be here. In the recollection of the Court and of record you are the first of your family to appear in court for any crime. The Schencks have always borne a good name. You come from a good and useful family. The Schencks and Pletchers and Holters have been the backbone of the lower Bald Eagle valley. They have stood and still stand for good citizenship. You personally have been honored in life in having been selected as Justice of the Peace. You violated your trust and have broken the laws. There is small chance for justice in any community where officials sworn to administer the laws violate them. First, partly because of your age and partly because you have come forward like a man and admitted your guilt, we are going to sentence you on one indictment, only, and suspend sentence on the other indictments. This means that on your behaviour after returning from the penitentiary the Court will be guided as to the remaining indictments. You have it in your hands to return, after serving your sentence, and demonstrate that you can be a good citizen. The Court believes you will do this. It is not pleasant to pass sentence upon a man the Court has known so many years, but the law imposes this duty upon us." Sentence was then pronounced, as outlined above.

The sudden termination of the bounty fraud cases and the sentencing of Schenck mark the climax to a case that attracted widespread attention because of the principle involved. The prosecution was directed by Attorney General Brown, at Harrisburg, who was represented at the trial by Frederick J. Shoyer, of Philadelphia. The aim of the Attorney General, should Schenck prove to be guilty, was not to persecute him but to insist upon a conviction and prison sentence to serve as a precedent and also for the moral effect throughout the State. With this in mind the Attorney General was satisfied to have a mild sentence in the event Schenck should withdraw his application for a new trial and enter a plea of guilty to the remaining charges. Had Schenck fought and lost out on the nine additional indictments he would have made himself liable to a prison term of sixty years, or a period much longer than he naturally would live. He is now in his fifty-ninth year.

The matter was laid before Schenck on Wednesday of last week, the date set for calling up the additional charges against him. His wife was sent for, and she came to Bellefonte for a conference with Schenck and his counsel. Sad as is the case of Schenck, that of his wife is more so by far. With implicit trust and confidence in her husband Mrs. Schenck has stood by him with a loyalty that appeals to one's sympathy and compels admiration. To those in the conference in the lawyers' office she said bravely that she wanted her husband to do what was right in the matter. The agreement embodying Schenck's plea of guilty followed quickly.

The Hayes Schenck who silently stood and listened to a prison sentence on Monday was a different man from the Hayes Schenck as many of his old companions and associates have known him in years gone by. Behind the change that had come over the man is a reason and one which Schenck and his loyal, sorrow-stricken wife are not ashamed to have made known. When Schenck said good-bye to his wife on Monday he was leaving her to be alone for two long years. Moreover, the day singled out by fate for Schenck to appear before the bar of justice for sentence was his wife's fifty eighth birthday anniversary.

The writer of this narrative of a sad tragedy in life last Friday spent several hours in the Schenck home in Howard. Schenck was there, as was his wife. The latter's hair is streaked with gray. It was just beginning to dawn upon her that her husband's offense was one that could not be condoned by the payment of a fine and that a term in prison was inevitable. She had been hoping to the last that in some way she and her husband would be spared. The great trouble that has come over her home is one she cannot understand. She realized that her husband had plead guilty, but this cleared nothing in her mind. Her husband had always been good to her, she remarked. He had his faults and weaknesses, she knew. But in the bounty fraud matter the commonwealth charged that several thousands of dollars had gone to her husband, and it was this feature, next to the confession of guilt, that appeared to her as baffling beyond expression. The Schenck home is one that while neat and clean would suggest little if anything beyond the plain necessities of life—certainly nothing approaching luxuries. If the bounty frauds produced the large sum of money as was claimed, quietly remarked Mrs. Schenck, no evidence of the fact had appeared in the last five years in the Schenck home. Hence her futile effort to comprehend how it could be, and even so not one word from her in criticism of those whose duty it was to prosecute and convict her husband. The fact that the day fixed for sentencing her husband would be her birthday touched her deeply. She remarked that at her time in life her birthday should be one of happiness, but she expressed sorrow, not anger, that it was not to be and that she herself was not the cause.

With all the world looking so dark and discouraging there was one great comfort to this little woman who will have to wait as best she can for two long years for her husband's return. Seated across the room from his wife and listening in silence as she talked of the sorrow that had engulfed their lives, Hayes Schenck quietly remarked:

"I am going to pay the penalty for the wrong I have done. I realize that I must go away for a time. I am pretty well along in years now, and this is a crisis in my life. I am sorry, sincerely sorry, for my wrongs. I am sorry, more than sorry, for the sorrow and suffering I have brought to my family. I am ready to be taken away and pay the penalty. My life from this time on will be that of a Christian. I shall come back to live as a Christian. I want to live to come back and be a good husband and a good citizen. I want to live to come back and be a man."

There was no false note in what was said. It was spoken before sentence had been passed. Through tear-dimmed eyes Mrs. Schenck looked at her husband as he said the only thing he possibly could say that could lighten her burden and ease her sufferings in the long days and nights that she will be alone.

"For that", said she, "I am glad and thankful."

Sandy Ridge Man Killed.

A distressing fatility occured Wednesday morning of last week at 7 o'clock at the Grace Mine, near Osceola. Oliver Irvin, of Sandy Ridge, was the unfortunate victim. He was making his first trip with several loaded cars, and on going from the plane to the tipple, the front car broke loose, and in attempting to catch the same he fell onto the track, three of the other cars passing over him. His back and both legs were broken and he was also internally injured, dying twenty minutes after. Young Irvin was aged about 24 years, and made his home with his mother, the widow of Patrick Irvin, of Sandy Ridge. He was a young man whose genial qualities won for him a large circle of friends.

R. R. COMPANY OPPOSES NITTANY VALLEY BUS

Passenger Traffic Competition Ruinous to Former.

UP TO P. S. COMMISSION

Public Hearing Held at Harrisburg on Monday—Witnesses Were Produced by Both Sides—Look for Decision in Near Future.

With the Public Service Commission, at Harrisburg, rests the question whether the Emerick bus line is to be permitted to continue its auto bus service between Bellefonte and Lock Haven, via the State road through Nittany valley. A public hearing was held before the commission in Harrisburg on Monday. The matter came up through the filing of a formal application by the Emericks for a certificate of public convenience, as is now required for the operation of an auto bus line. The application was opposed by the Central Railroad Co. of Penna. A number of witnesses for each side were heard. A decision may be handed down in fifteen days, although it will likely be much later if counsel for the Emericks and the railroad company are directed to file briefs with the commission.

Underlying the controversy is the matter of the continued existence of the Central Railroad Co. of Penna. With the establishment of the bus line to Lock Haven as a competitor for passenger traffic the railroad company has suffered a financial loss that is regarded as ruinous. Without passenger as well as freight traffic the railroad company's future is uncertain, at best. If it is to depend on freight traffic, only, the railroad company fears it cannot maintain the cost of operation. On this ground, and also contending that the railroad company affords Nittany valley residents ample passenger traffic facilities, the Public Service Commission has been asked to deny the bus line a certificate, without which it cannot continue in business. The bus line transports no freight.

Appearing as witnesses upholding the contention that the railroad company afforded ample passenger traffic service in Nittany valley were Squire Sol. Peck, of Huston; J. H. Beck, of Nittany; Dr. Domb, of Mackeyville; Mr. Yearick, of Nittany; John D. Miller, Hublersburg; John Evey, of Zion. Witnesses appearing in support of the Emerick bus line were Epley Gentzel, of Zion; Newton Crenoble, of Hecla Park; John B. Harris and Charles Krape, of Lamar, and Mr. Bennet, of Clintondale.

Officials of the Bellefonte Central Railroad Co. took no part in the proceedings but were interested spectators. The same point involved in the issue at hand applies as between the Bellefonte Central Railroad Co. and the Emerick bus line to State College and in less important measure as between the Pennsylvania Railroad Co. and the recently established auto bus line between Bellefonte and Snow Shoe, as between the Pennsylvania Railroad Co. and the Emerick bus line to Pleasant Gap, and as between the Pennsylvania Railroad Co. and the Emerick bus line from Bellefonte to Milesburg.

Prisoner is Recaptured.

Augustine Gentile, aged 26, escaped early last Thursday morning from the Rockview Penitentiary Farm, but was recaptured in Glen Iron on Friday. He was sentenced on Saturday to an additional term of three to four years.

Gentile, who is an Italian, was at liberty but a short time after his escape largely as a result of his stupidity. After tramping through the mountains for some hours he appeared in the open country and approaching a railroad telegraph operator near Coburn asked for money to buy a ticket. This was refused. Gentile had about 40 cents in his pockets and he bought a ticket to Glen Iron, which was as far as his money reached. Immediately after selling him the ticket the railroad agent, who had observed Gentile's clothing and general description, notified the penitentiary officials. The latter wired ahead and Gentile was picked up when he alighted from the train at Glen Iron.

Argue Swartz Appeal Oct. 2.

The appeal of B. Paul Swartz, of near Howard, for a new trial will be argued before the Superior Court on Monday, October 2d. Notice was received by Prothonotary Foreman on Monday that the case would be returnable on the first Monday in June. Counsel for Swartz, however, received notice that argument would not be heard until the first Monday in October. Swartz, who was sentenced to a term of 10 to 15 years in the penitentiary for writing a "blackhand" letter, will remain in jail here pending action on his appeal unless he is able to produce bail to the amount of $5,000, the amount fixed by Judge Quigley.

COUNTY W. C. T. U. HOLDS ITS 31ST. CONVENTION

Session at State College Shows Marked Progress.

UNIONVILLE NEXT YEAR

Gratifying Results Reported from Branches Throughout County—Healthy Increase in Membership and Aroused Interest in the Cause.

The 31st. Annual Convention of the Women's Christian Temperance Union of Centre County, Pa., was called to order by the president, Miss Rebecca N. Rhoads, of Bellefonte, at 1.30 P. M. on Friday May 19th, in the Presbyterian church at State College. The Crusade hymn was followed by the reading of the Crusade Psalm (the 146th.) by Mrs. Carner, of Hublersburg. Rev. Mr. Martin, pastor of the church, was called on to lead in prayer.

After singing "A Saloonless Nation in 1920" the greeting to the Convention delegates was delivered by Mrs. A. L. Wright, President of the State College Union. Mrs. A. M. Schmidt, of Bellefonte, responded with a speech of appreciation for the warm welcome extended. Mrs. Lora S. La Mance, of Missouri, National W. C. T. U. lecturer and organizer, was then introduced to the convention and made a short speech, urging preparedness as the watchword of the union in the sense that you prepare yourselves for the work to be done in the fight against the liquor traffic. Who would think anything of the workman who came to your house without any tools? Who would try to debate any question without being acquainted with the issue involved? Who, therefore, should try to fight for the abolition of the liquor traffic without being well read on the subject and without knowing how to refute the fallacious arguments of the liquor men? A campaign for subscriptions for the "Union Signal" was then engaged in. The paper is the best Temperance paper in the world, has the most pep, and has a greater abundance of "dry" and "wet" facts than any other paper.

At two o'clock Dr. Edwin Erle Sparks, president of the College, delivered his address of welcome and included remarks concerning the problem which alcohol presents in the training of college men. The leading of a youth from his boyhood to manhood days is one of the gravest questions of education and is complicated greatly by the influence of saloons. College students as well as others, would be much better off without saloons, and would be still much better off without the numerous other vices which always go along with alcohol. Therefore, to increase the efficiency of institutions of learning, in training men for business corporations and for life, we should do away with the liquor traffic. If we can't secure state-wide prohibition, we can all support Local Option, he said. Temperance also is very much easier to maintain in a college community when alcohol is not present to lead the students astray. Dr. Sparks' address was greatly appreciated.

Miss Gladys Dunkle, of State College, sang a greatly appreciated solo. This was followed by the roll call of the unions of the county, showing that twelve unions out of seventeen were represented by delegates (later the 13th. union was also represented.) Five officers and seven of the eleven superintendents were present. Miss Savilla Rearick, of Centre Hall, reported on the executive committee meeting which was held in the morning. The executive committee reported, in addition to several minor business matters, in favor of hearty endorsement of and earnest work for Local Option and State-wide prohibition, ever working toward the ultimate goal of national prohibition, also of retaining the Temperance Light Bearers as a separate department of the union.

After the appointment of various committees Miss Rhoads delivered her address as president. She summed up the work done in the past year, rejoicing in the fact of the addition of nearly three hundred boys and girls to the ranks of the county union through the organizing of five new Loyal Temperance Legions and members gained to old Legions. Remonstrances were issued and circulated against every licensed place in the county, a permanent Men's County Temperance League was organized last fall, many gifted speakers were employed to tour the county, two institutes were held, resolutions and petitions sent to Congress for National Constitutional Prohibition, and thousands of pages of literature distributed, peace day inaugurated in the Bellefonte schools, and prize essay contests held and also other activities. More poster campaigns, more L. T. Ls., more essay contests and renewed efforts by the members themselves with never-failing enthusiasm are the goals to be aimed at and attained. But above all else the W. C. T. U. must depend on God "who is at the forefront of every holy conflict", quoting from Mrs. Stevens' former National President, that the call comes to the Woman's Christian Temperance Union as the greatest organized force of womankind, with renewed emphasis that "forward", and urging them always to remember how vain is evil and that only what is good is worth while and can endure." She spoke of the valuable help of the State College Prohibition League called upon one of their number who was present to say a few words to the convention.

Dr. Fred Lewis Pattee, of the College Faculty, was then introduced to the convention and prefaced his remarks by complimenting the women on never becoming discouraged and declared that in the end they must overcome all obstacles and win the fight. This speech was followed by the report of the Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Anna M. Clees, of Philipsburg. Her report made up of the reports of each union will be published in the annual State Report of the W. C. T. U. She reported seven licenses refused as the result of remonstrances and speaking which were secured in the county. She also reported the membership of the county which showed a large total increase since last year. Miss Savilla Rearick, of Centre Hall, the County Treasurer, made a brief report of the finances of the county organization. The report which will be printed in full in the Annual Report of W. C. T. U., showed a comfortable balance in the treasury to begin the next year with, and was accepted by the convention. The business of the afternoon being over, Mrs. La Mance was again introduced as the speaker of the day. She did not give an address, she gave a good straight talk full of "pep". She gave statistics upon statistics, and arguments upon arguments, showing why Pennsylvania should have the right to vote on Local Option and why Pennsylvania should vote on state-wide prohibition. Every W. C. T. U. should be a wide-awake, worthwhile W. C. T. U. It should keep up in all departments of work, but also should keep up in the spiritual tone of the union by prayer. Next to prayer, however, work is the most important factor in victory. She said Pennsylvania can be gained by the "drys"—that it is not so difficult a state as many others. She has herself taken part in 101 prohibition and suffrage campaigns and promised when the campaign is on for good here in Pennsylvania the best talent in the whole United States as speakers will be sent in to us and help win the day as has been done in the nineteen states already for prohibition. She recommended that the W. C. U. T. here follow the policy of the State and National and not endorse any one man but always stand for the principles of Local Option and Prohibition and for the candidates who uphold those principles. W. C. T. U. women are not alone fighting the liquor traffice but all other evils. Women mold public sentiment more than men. At the end of Mrs. La Mance's talk a short time was given for asking questions. After this Mrs. Frank Gardner, of State College, took a few moments explaining to the convention the Mothers' Pension bill. So far Centre County has no Mothers' Pension bill, although there are twenty-four counties in the state with this bill. The Convention passed a motion that resolutions be drawn up favoring this bill and that it be sent to the Centre County Commissioners. After announcements and offering the convention adjourned with the benediction.

At the evening session Dr. Carroll, of the M. E. church, of State College, conducted the devotional exercises, after which most pleasing features of the program were exercises and songs by the little L. T. Ls of the College Union, music by the orchestra and songs by the College student quartette beautifully rendered. Dean Thomas Blaisdell, of the Liberal Arts School of the College, then followed with an interesting talk, dealing especially with citizenship and praises of the loyalty of the W. C. T. U. The battle of temperance has been fought for one hundred and twenty-nine years. On the results of this battle depends the world's success. Is Christianity going to be a success? Not until we abolish rum. The way we think, vote and act.

The W. C. T. U. is responsible for placing temperance instruction in our public schools. Our best hope is in the way the women are standing in the forefront of the fight, gaining a little here and a little there. Every woman should

MAJ. GEN. LEONARD WOOD TO SPEAK AT BOALSBURG

To Address Great Preparedness Meeting June 3d.

NEW COMPANY FORMED

Major General Leonard Wood, commanding the United States Army, will deliver an address and a monster preparedness meeting and old-fashioned barbecue will be held at Boalsburg on the afternoon of Saturday, June 3d. The address of General Wood, alone, will be a feature that will no doubt attract a throng of visitors from all parts of Centre County, his views on national preparedness being of particular interest at this time. He has accepted an invitation extended by Theodore Davis Boal and will spend the day in Boalsburg as Mr. Boal's guest.

A tempting menu for the barbecue is being arranged by the committee in charge, the members of which include Mr. Boal and George B. Thompson, of Alto. An ox will be roasted, there will be half a dozen lambs browned to a turn, to say nothing of fried chicken and other delicious morsels to appease the hunger of a crowd that is enjoying a day in the open air.

The big preparedness meeting and barbecue might be said to be the top notch feature in celebration of the organization of a volunteer mounted machine gun troop among representative citizens of Boalsburg and State College and vicinity, with a few members from more distant points. The enrollment of 50 has been completed and an order was placed in Philadelphia this week for uniforms. General Wood has assured Mr. Boal that the War Department at Washington will furnish other necessary equipment for the men. It is proposed having a two weeks' encampment at Boalsburg during the summer, and in all likelihood some of the members of the company will also participate in the training camp at Plattsburg, N. Y. Lieutenant Ahrends, U. S. A., commandant at the Pennsylvania State College, is the military advisor for the new company. Members from State College and Boalsburg and surrounding territory enrolled include the following:

THE FORESTRY MOVEMENT

Fire Protective Association Organizer Emphasizes Importance of Work.

The Forestry movement in Pennsylvania is at the present time in a critical stage of development. Much splendid work has been done by the founders of forestry in our state. Such men as Dr. Rothrock, and others of the earlier days, deserve much credit in arousing the public to an understanding of the vast importance of the forestry crusade. We today are facing an entirely different proposition. We are much in the same position as a business man who speaks of prospects, but not actually closed business, or the evangelist and singer with a large, but un converted audience. Mr Pinchot put it this way; "forestry is practiced every where except in the woods." The actual, definite results is what we need today. The vast forestry field is but slightly explored. The seeds of destruction in forest fires, we are already reaping Today our problem is one of constructive upbuilding of Forest communities—protection from fires and planting of trees; and organized and systemnized centers of live patriotic citizens, who will lead the way in a work not altogether practical in dollars and cents for the immediate future.

Even though we have made some brazen mistakes along forestry lines in Pennsylvania, yet I am convinced that the work started on right lines, greatly over-balances these mistakes. It is unfortunate that we should have spent the vast sum of $275,000, in an attempt in eradicating a tree disease. Destroying the chestnut blight, practical men have always considered a very foolish and wasteful attempt at an impossible work. Impractical both from a physical point of view, because of the vast territory necessary to cover and impossible because of the nature of the disease and the ease it may be carried from one place to another.

As the organizer of the Central Pennsylvania Forest Fire Protective Association, I wish to express my appreciation for the splendid way in which the good citizens of Centre county have taken hold of this splendid work.

The credit for the advanced step you have taken along forestry lines belongs to you. It is an indication of your civic pride and expresses true patriotism. Keep the good work going.

FOREST FIRES

Why organized Fire Protection is especially practical.

First, and most important, is the fact that the land owners in north western Centre county are awake to the value of organization. The majority realize something of the tremendous losses caused by forest fires and how urgently necessary it is that active steps be taken immediately to stop this loss. When you hear our plans we think every one will belive them to be highly practical.

Second, our district contains in the central part of Rush township a few thousand acres of State lands now entirely unprotected and if ever reforested will require a system of Fire Protection. We also join a large body of State lands in Burnside and Snow Shoe townships, only the one at Karthus separates us from the State lands in Clearfield county. Our association will be a great aid in protecting these lands from fires.

Third, north western Centre county has in spite of numerous fires a very thrifty young growth of valuable timber species. Perhaps none superior anywhere in the world. This season, last spring and fall very little damage was done by fire. Frequent rains have been favorable to giving the young trees in many sections a start.

Fourth, our district is the source of many valuable springs and streams and the water shed of the important Susquehanna and Moshannon rivers.

Fifth, it may be thought by some that much of this land is owned by coal companies who have no interest in their land except for the coal underlying. This, however, is not the attitude of many of the large coal operations; and why should it be? They need mine material and there is no reason why they should not be receiving profits from their surface lands as well as from their coal underneath. Paper, coal and railroad companies in this community, as well as other concerns, will need the timber that north western Centre county will grow. And many towns now depending almost entirely on coal mining will find the more intensive lumber industry of the future a very welcome substitute for the coal industry when coal will be exhausted.

We should most surely look out for the future of our community which will be very sadly affected when the coal is exhausted and if by any chance without protection our mountains become bare. Our land is a consecutive body of timber lands most of it good for growing trees only.

MARQUIS IS MODERATOR

Presbyterian Assembly at Atlantic City Announces His Selection.

President John A. Marquis, of Coe college, Cedar Rapids, Ia., was elected moderator of the general assembly of the Presbyterian church in the United States at Atlantic City last week. Dr. Marquis was chosen on the second ballot, receiving 616 votes to 237 for the Rev. William L. McEwan, of Pittsburgh.

On the first ballot Dr. Marquis lacked but two votes of the majority necessary to elect. He received 430 votes, Dr. McEwan 279 and Dr. George L. Robinson, president of McCormick seminary, Chicago, 159. When the count was announced Dr. Robinson withdrew in favor of Dr. Marquis. Several other names were placed in nomination but they withdrew before the first ballot was ordered.

Action on the alleged heterodoxy of the New York presbytery in connection with the ordination of three graduates of the Union Theological seminary, who, it is charged, failed to accept certain qualifications set down as ministerial requirements by the assembly will not be taken until during the present week. This was announced by Rev. Dr. J. Ross Stevenson, the retiring moderator, who automatically becomes chairman of the committee on bills and overtures.

The overtures submitted by the Cincinnatti presbytery demanding that the New York presbytery be expelled from the assembly, Dr. Stevenson said will first have to be submitted to the stated clerk before being placed in the hands of the bills and overtures committee. Many of the delegates believe it very probable that the Cincinnatti overture will be smothered in committee. They pointed out that the New York presbytery represents a church investment aggregating $21,000,000 and declare that to bring the matter before the assembly would start a revolt that would be of serious consequences. Dr. Marquis, the newly elected moderator, said that should the matter come to the floor of the convention for action, he would not participate in the controversy but merely would see that the parliamentary rules are obeyed.

The June American Magazine.

In the June American Magazine Dale Carnagey has an interesting article on money made in writing for the movies, giving the experience of hitherto unknown persons who have achieved vast wealth through the medium of the films. "Ambitious Business Men Rising to a New Opportunity" by Albert W. Atwood is an original description of how the United States is taking Germany's place in the chemical and industrial world. There are many other articles distinctly worth reading, among them an interview with Dr. Alexander Graham Bell, who advises every young man to get an idea of his own. "A Successful Surgeon's Own Story" by a famous specialist, tells how he attained an annual income of $20,000 a few years after graduating from the medical college and gives some of his thrilling experiences in the operating room. "Your Hidden Powers and the Key to Unlock Them," is a graphic account of a business man's rise to power and wealth through giving his subordinates due credit for their work. For the series on "The Glory of the States," C. P. Connolly has an article on Montana. Other articles are: "Those Rheumatic Twinges," by Dr. Arthur R. Reynolds, who claims that the cause of rheumatism has been discovered, "Heads Up and Use Corners Only," by Frederick Upham Adams, and "Are Drinks Worth Twenty-five Minutes Apiece?" by Dr. Edwin F. Bowers, who supplies scientific proof to show that each drink taken shortens life by about that length of time.

Fiction is contributed by Sophie Kerr, E. Richard Schayer, Frank R. Adams, Jack Lait, Edwin Carty Ranck and Philip Curtiss, who continues his big serial, "Between Two Worlds."

In the regular departments dealing with "Interesting People," "The Family Money" and "Habits" there is a large amount of good reading. The prize-winning letters in the contest on "My Hobby and Why I Enjoy It" are published. The June issue of The American Magazine presents excellent material and plenty of it in many different fields.

State Agricultural Notes.

May 1 reports from all sections of the State show a decided gain in the prospects of a normal peach crop over the indications of a month ago. In Adams county, the center of the peach belt, the indications on May 1 were for 76 per cent. of a normal crop against 52 per cent. on April 1.

According to reports from all sections of the State the livestock is in splendid condition. In twenty-one counties the condition is reported above the average while in twenty-six counties the condition is normal. Little disease is reported and the livestock has spent a splendid winter.

The Dairy and Food Bureau of the Department of Agriculture has started a crusade against marchino cherries used in cocktails and as trimmings for ice cream "sundaes." It has been found upon analysis that many of the cherries contain sulphur dioxide which is prohibited by the pure food law.

Reports from crop correspondents state that the clover meadows, wheat and rye have been very little damaged this spring by heaving and splendid crops are expected.

Farm labor is reported very scarce and in many sections the farmers are from two to four weeks behind time with their spring work.

Reports from various sections of the State indicate that the Elberta peaches have been greatly affected by the changing weather conditions in January and February.

HAVE YOU A BAD BACK?

If You Have, the Statement of the Bellefonte Resident Will Interest You.

Does your back ache, night and day;
Hinder work; destroy your rest?
Does it stab you through and through
When you stoop or lift or bend?
Then your kidneys may be weak.
Often backache is the clue
Just to give you further proof,
The kidney action may be wrong.
If attention is not paid
More distress will soon appear.
Headaches, dizzy spells and nerves,
Uric acid and its ills
Make the burden worse and worse.
Liniments and plasters can't
Reach the inward cause at all;

57 Creameries in Butter Contest.

Fifty-seven creameries in Pennsylvania entered the first of seven educational creamery-butter scoring contests being conducted by the department of dairy husbandry at the Pennsylvania State College. The first contest was held April 25.

A large per cent of the lower scoring butter was due to the fact that the creameries were receiving too much old, stale, sour cream. Even though the buttermakers use the latest and most improved methods in manufacturing butter, it is impossible to secure high scoring butter with a good, clean, delicate flavor from cream that is old and stale. In a number of cases the delicate flavor of the butter was spoiled by too high a percentage of salt.

Creamery patrons should keep their milk or cream in good condition and make delivery to the creamery frequently. All cream should be sweet and free from taint and should not test under thirty-five per cent in butterfat.

The highest score for the first contest was ninety-five per cent. The scoring was done by J. C. Joslin of the dairy division of the United States Department of Agriculture and I. I. Bibby of the Pennsylvania State College.

Athletes as Religious Workers.

That men prominent in athletic circles and other collegiate activities at the Pennsylvania State College are equally interested in religion was evidenced several days ago at the election of officers for the college Christian Association. The popularity of the candidates resulted in the largest vote ever cast for similar offices in the college.

W. E. Kroll, of Philadelphia, an associate editor of the Collegian, was elected president by a large majority. Harold Clark, of Harrisburg, varsity football captain, was chosen vice president. W. R. Diem, of Malvern, a member of the college debating team, was made second vice president. Others officers elected are: Roy E. Coombs, of Taylor, manager of the soccer team, secretary; Joseph H. Wilson, of Indiana, member of the track team, treasurer; and Clay Lindemuth, of York, M. M. Long, of Lebanon, captain of the wrestling team, and J. L. Steele, of Elkins Park, were elected assistant treasurers.

You know how we all chipped in on a little collection for Del Morgan when he cut himself on that ink scratcher, got blood poison, and was laid up so long? While Del appreciated it, he was pretty embarrassed. That taught me my lesson. I telephoned the ÆTNA and told 'em I wanted to

For a Tip-Top Breakfast
Serve
New Post Toasties

Here's the why:

The New Toasties have a delicate, true corn flavour---unmatched by any other corn flakes. Trial proves.

They are the meat of choicest white Indian Corn---first cooked and seasoned, then rolled into thin wisps and toasted by quick intense rotary heat. This new patented process of making raises distinguishing little bubbles on each flake, and brings out their wonderful new flavour.

ODD PLACE NAMES

How Some of Our Cities Received Their Appellations.

CHANCE HUMOR AND SATIRE.

All These Had Roles In the Selection by the Pioneers of Titles For Their New Homes—Why There Is Not a Great Boston on the Pacific Coast.

The thriving cities, the picturesque streams and the rugged mountains of the United States have in numerous instances received their names for reasons calculated to give a shock to the national board of geographic names.

The most grotesque accidents and coincidences, the results of games or wagers, the grim efforts of the pioneer mind to be satirical at the expense of his new home, all have operated to determine the name by which proud municipalities or imposing physical features appear upon the map.

In a general study of the origin and significance of place names of this country made by the United States geological survey the following oddly given names have been picked out:

The naming of the populous city of Portland, Ore., was decided by the tossing of a copper coin by two settlers, one from Portland, Me., the other from Boston. The Maine man won, else we should have had another great Boston on the Pacific.

The city of Tombstone, Ariz., was named as a bit of grim humor. Its finder had been advised when starting on his prospecting tour that he would "find his tombstone." In order that the prophecy might be fulfilled he gave the name to the city he established.

The city of Bangor, Me., bears the name of an old psalm tune which our forefathers sang to the tremor of a tuning fork. The name was given by the Rev. Seth Noble, who represented the district in the Maine legislature.

Wheeling, the metropolis of West Virginia, owes its name to the circumstance of the Indians having displayed the head of a white man on a pole at this point. The name is from the Indian weal-ink, meaning "place of a human head."

One of the most distinctive names on the map of Colorado is Ouray. It has been applied to a city, a county and an imposing mountain. Yet the name means nothing more nor less than Willie and is the result of the Ute Indians' attempt to translate this synonym of Harold and Percy into their own tongue.

The city of Norwalk, Conn., is said to have been so named because when purchased from the Indians the northern boundary of the land was to extend northward from the sea one day's walk, according to the Indian marking of the distance.

A town in Georgia rejoices in the strikingly original but somewhat ambiguous designation of Nameless. The name was given from the fact that in a list of several hundred names submitted to the postoffice authorities not one was found satisfactory.

A town in Gunnison county, Colo., possesses the eloquent name of Tin Cup, given because in its early days, when a mining camp, gold was so plentiful that it was measured in a tin cup.

The Calico mountain range in California was given its name from the variegated color of its rocks.

The city of Jacksonville, Ill., was named for a prominent colored preacher and is perhaps the largest community in the country named for a negro.

The city of Spartanburg, S. C., was so called from the rigorous, Spartan-like self discipline practiced by the inhabitants during the Revolutionary war.

A stream in Ravalli county, Mont., is known as Weeping Child from the circumstance of an Indian child being carried off by a mountain lion, causing insanity in the mother.

Antelope county, in Nebraska, was so named in commemoration of the killing and eating of an antelope during the pursuit of some Indians by the pioneers.

The town of Deerfield, N. H., was so named because, when the petition for the establishment of the town was pending, a Mr. Batchelder killed a deer and upon presenting it to Governor Wentworth obtained the act of establishment and the town name.

Hell Gate, the narrow pass in the East river at New York, was called by the Dutch hellegat, meaning "bright strait" or "clear opening." The name quickly suggested the present English form, which was regarded as more appropriate on account of the whirlpools which made navigation dangerous.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Some Pay More.

The man was looking over the family bills as his wife glanced through the paper.

"Oh, John," she said, "it tells here of a young fellow who was fined $6.80 for flirting."

"That's cheaper than I got off," replied the man, his eye still on the bills.—Philadelphia Ledger.

AN ELEPHANT RIDE

FEELS LIKE AN EARTHQUAKE.

And Resembles For a Time Trying to Sit on a Steep Slanting Roof—The Big Brutes Are Timid, and Little Pigs and Quicksands Terrify Them.

Elephant riding is a thing that, like guessing people's names correctly, requires a good deal of practice. The first ride is a thing never to be forgotten, more especially if it happens to be on a pad elephant—that is to say, one that carries no howdah or seat of any kind except an immense, hard, lumpy mattress, which is fastened on by four large rough ropes, pulled as taut as man's strength can pull them. If there are two or three other persons already mounted you get a corner of this mattress to sit on and are told to hold on by the ropes.

Meanwhile the elephant is getting tired of kneeling and keeps making heaving motions unpleasantly suggestive of the sea. You strive wildly to get your fingers under one of the ropes and are asked impatiently if you are ready.

You do not feel at all ready or likely ever to be ready, for your seat is uncertain and slippery, and for the life of you you cannot get a fair hold on the rope.

Breaking your nails in a last desperate effort, you say feebly that you are ready, when with a sudden jerk, that seems to drag all your bones out of their sockets, you are tilted up on a steep slope, about as pleasant to sit on as the side of a slate roof.

But you have no time to enjoy the position, for there comes another foundering jerk that knocks your hat over your eyes and throws you violently against your next neighbor, after which you find your seat is level again, and it presently dawns upon you that this earthquake was, in truth, merely the elephant's customary way of rising. He is now slowly and solemnly stalking onward, as you are aware by feeling your spine rhythmically and soundlessly dislocated at each noiseless step.

At first it seems to you as odd that you should ever come to like riding an elephant, as that eels should come to like being skinned, and your friend's assurance that you will ere long be able to dispense with the aid of ropes and go on chatting and even smiling while that colossal upheaval takes place falls on the ear as an idle tale.

Nevertheless it is the truth. Before a week is over you hardly notice the getting up or the kneeling down. You rarely take hold of a rope, and you are indifferent to almost any angle of steepness. You learn to appreciate the restfulness of being on a colossus that will never stumble, never shy, never frolic and with whose guidance you have no more to do than you have with that of a ship at sea.

Even when an elephant is mutinous he is so in a solemn, well considered manner. He will not run away, though he will on occasion stride away, and a sufficient absurd sight it is, though not to those on his back.

I once saw an elephant try conclusions with his mahout and stride off defiantly in a wrong direction till the savage blows rained upon his head by the driver with his heavy iron hook made him change his tactics. He pulled up short and began rocking his body violently to and fro till first one rider and then another was sent flying until all were gone.

The sight of them strewing the ground around him and ruefully rubbing their bruises assuaged his anger. An elephantine smile lit up his rugged face, and he once more rendered cheerful obedience to his mahout.

Considering his strength and size, the elephant is a timorous beast. They are greatly alarmed by small pigs, and I have known an otherwise sensible elephant utterly routed by a litter of piglings scampering between his legs in thick grass jungle.

Now, a pigling can never have hurt an elephant. Therefore whence his fear? Can it be their latent powers of squealing?

Certain it is that pigs share with quicksands the power of terrifying an elephant. His reasons for fearing quicksands are weighty ones, and it is impossible not to sympathize with the huge beast's agony of terror when he finds himself on unsound ground.

A spot was pointed out to us along the river bank at Fyzabad, where a year ago an elephant had got into a quicksand and been lost.

All that could be done to save him was done, but the treacherous sand would not forego its victim. Four days he took to sink out of sight, and then nothing could be seen of him but the tip of his trunk, still piteously beckoning in vain for help. At last the cruel sand closed over that, and his last agony was ended.—St. Paul Pioneer-Press.

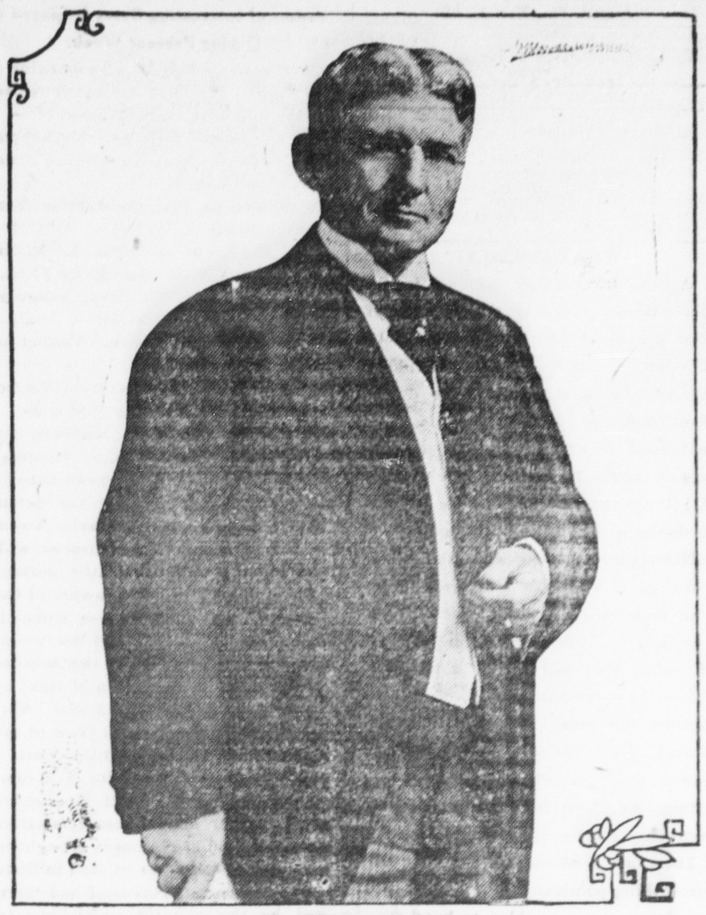
The Conquest of the Arctic



DR. WIRT.

Covering three years of life, adventure and exploration in the lands bordering the Circum-Polar sea, with Eskimos for companions and dogs for heroes, Dr. Wirt's discoveries and explorations parallel in many respects those of other arctic travelers, but his interpretation of Eskimo life and the story of his dogs are absolutely unique.

His flight during the long night of an arctic winter in quest of relief for his sick, ice imprisoned companions; the almost human intelligence of his dogs; the Igloo village never before visited by white man; the strange customs, fetish dances and heathenish orgies of the Eskimo; the treachery of false guides; the awful silence and loneliness; the auroral splendors; his study of arctic bird and animal life; the escape from wolves; the attack of a whale while at sea in an open kayak and the final escape—all this and much more combine to make an unusually fascinating lecture.

THE STROLLERS QUARTET

Chautauqua audiences are the most appreciative in the world. They know a good thing when they see it. The Original Strollers Quartet has a third season's engagement with the Chautauqua Association of Swarthmore and will be on our program this year solely because the Chautauquas demand them.

They present a program of wonderful variety—quartets, duets, solos, both vocal and instrumental; songs, both serious and comic; interlocutor work; high grade recitals, both tear fetching and laughter compelling, with many etceteras. With it all, they are the best Swiss Bell Ringers on the road. They never fail to capture the crowd.

The Bijou Singers

The fifth day of Chautauqua this year is one of the most enjoyable. The Bijou Singers will give a delightful concert, both afternoon and evening. Henry Kelly, at the right above, is one of the finest baritones on the road. Anthony Guarino is also a big tenor, clear cut and melodious, with remarkable range. Miss Augusta Cooper is a brilliant coloratura soprano. Miss Elsie Luker, who accompanies them, is a good contralto as well as solo player and entertainer. It will be a day of wonderful variety.

WHAT IS WISEST?

A Progressive editor writing in Collier's Weekly says it is reported that Senator Penrose is willing to accept the Roosevelt candidacy if that should be the wisest thing politically. We do not doubt that this is true. In fact, the statement is axiomatic. Mr. Penrose has no monopoly of such an opinion. All Republicans hold to it. We all want to do the wisest thing at Chicago.

Nobody now can tell what the wisest thing is. A dozen honorable and able men will strive for the Chicago nomination. Any one of them is worthy of it—but who will assert, a fortnight before the convention meets, that this, that or the other man is the wisest choice? There has been no consultation among the men who must make the nomination. Very few State delegations, even, have met for conference.

Therefore, it seems to us, that the wisest thing politically is to wait until the Convention assembles, to hear then the reasons why the partisans of the various candidates think their man is the best to choose, to weigh the probabilities of the compaign which will follow, to adjust such differences as may appear—and then to nominate the man who appears most likely to attract all the voting elements which are opposed to the continuance of Democratic rule.

Seven New M. E. Bishops.

Saratoga Springs, N. Y., May 22 —

Seven new names appear on the roll of Bishops of the Methodist Episcopal church. Four, Matt S. Hughes, of Pasadena, Cal.,; William P. Oldham, of New York; Franklin Hamilton, of Washington, D. C.; and Charles D. Mitchell, of Chicago, were elected by the genera conference on Friday. The others, Drs. Thomas Nicholson, of New York; Herbert Welch, of Delaware, O.; and Adna W. Leonard, of Seattle, Wash., were selected earlier in the balloting.

The seventeeth and final ballot was taken at 10 o'clock Friday night and resulted in the election of Dr. Hamilton, who was the last bishop to be chosen. He obtained 514 votes, which was five more than the required number.

With his election, the balloting, which began Tuesday and has continued for the greater part of four days, was brought to a close. In announcing the election of Rev. Dr. Hamilton Bishop Frederick D. Leete, who was presiding, stated that never before have so many bishops been elected in one day.

Rev. Dr. Franklin Hamilton has been chancellor of the American University, Washington, D. C., since 1907. He is a brother of Bishop, John W. Hamilton, of Boston, who retires from active service this year by the age limit. Dr. Hamilton was born in Pleasant Valley, O.

Of the four bishops chosen two are pastors, one is a college president and one is an official of a church board. As a result of the election two brothers, Bishop Edwin H. Hughes and Dr. Matt S. Hughes elected last Friday will be members of the board of bishops. Dr. Hughes, who is 53 years old, was born at West Union, Va. He has been pastor at Grinnell, Iowa, Portland, Maine, Minneapolis and Kansas City, Mo. Dr. Charles Baird Mitchell was born at Pittsburgh in 1857. He has been pastor in Pittsburgh, Pa., Plainfield, N. J. Cleveland, O., Minneapolis, Minn., and St. James church, Chicago, where he succeeded Bishop William A. Quayle.

Farmers' Institutes.

The County Board of Farmers' Institute Managers will meet at the County Commissioners' office on the second Tuesday of June, to arrange for the place where Institutes are to be held this season. All of our people who desire Institutes ought to attend this meeting and present their claims. This board is composed of the Local Members of the State Board of Agriculture, and one representative from each County Agricultural Society, the Pomona Grange, County Alliance and other kindred organizations. If you find that you cannot attend this meeting, address a letter with your request to the Chairman of Board Institute Managers, care of County Commissioners.

JOHN A WOODWARD.

To Observe Memorial Day.

Memorial day will be observed by the members of Lieut. Geo. L. Jackson Camp, No. 70, U. S. W. V., by cooperating with Gregg Post, No. 65, G. A. R. They will march with Gregg Post on Sunday, May 28th, to the United Brethren church. In the afternoon they will go with the older veterans to Meyers, Shiloh and Pleasant Gap cemeteries. On May 30th they will report at the Post rooms at one o'clock and march to the Diamond where at 1.30 the parade will form and proceed to the Union cemetery where services will be held at the grave of Lieut. Jackson.

COURT IN SESSION

Court convened on Monday morning at 10 o'clock. The trial list was gone over and the following cases disposed of:—

Samuel Grant Dale vs. Moshannon Coal Company; trespass, continued under terms of settlement.

Adam Krisosky vs. Constantine Yancovsky; settled.

Mary E. Kreps vs. Ellis L. Miller, executor; verdict for plaintiff for $1663.

Executors of H. M. Gray, assignee; verdict for plaintiff $2281.33.

Thomas J. Lee, trustee. Verdict for plaintiff $6304

W. D. Carskadden, executor. Verdict for the plaintiff in the sum of $830.35.

Samuel B. Weaver vs. National Ben Franklin Fire Insurance Co. This case is from Taylor township; grows out of a policy of fire insurance by the defendant company on a barn in Taylor Township which the plaintiff had insured, and which policy provided that the assured was the absolute and sole owner of the real estate upon which it was situated. The barn burned in 1912 and the premises occupied at the time by the brother of the plaintiff under a claim of right by virtue of the Sheriff's deed in 1907. Verdict on Tuesday afternoon in favor of the defendant under direction of the court.

Charles E. Decker vs. John N. Krumrine, A. H. Krumrine, W. H. Kerstetter, C. A. Kerstetter and Albert Kerstetter. This is an action of ejectment brought to recover about five acres of land in State College Borough. This land had been owned by the plaintiff and failing in business made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors to John N. Krumrine, who so conducted the assigned estate and filed his account which was confirmed by the Court, after having sold the real estate, subject to two mortgages. The real estate having been sold and shortly thereafter became vested in John N. Krumrine and his brother. The plaintiff contended that the title having become vested in his assignee that this created a fraud in law and that he therefore had right to recover. The real estate having been sold at the assignee's sale to the son-in-law of A. H. Krumrine and by him to his father-in-law and John M. Krumrine on Wednesday forenoon at the close of the plaintiff's testimony counsel for the defendant moved the Court for a compulsory non-suit on the ground that an action in ejectment did not lie in this case. Motion for non suit sustained.

Birth of a Nation.

Mae Marsh, who plays Flora Cameron the younger daughter in the Southern household in "The Birth of a Nation" at the Liberty Theatre, by her successful appearance in many photo plays during her three years' career, has attracted by herself like charm and naive personality, many admirers who greet with pleasure her appearance on the screen.

Miss Marsh has many bits of fine acting in the picture. Among the most delightful are the welcoming of the brother back from the Civil War; the making of "southern ermine" with raw cotton and chimney black; the scene in the cellar with Miriam Cooper; the garden making that follows the return from war; the southern banquet; and the pretty scene where she rains kisses on her brother Ben's mouth to console him from temporary loss of his sweetheart Elsie. There is always a touch of comedy or of pathos where Miss Marsh appears. Her personality lends itself to fine temperamental treatment of any part she plays. Her expressive, ever changing, mood-adapting face, is one of the most valuable in all the list of film favorites. At Garman's Opera House, Wednesday and Thursday, May 31st and June 1st.

POETS AS PUNSTERS.

Even Shakespeare and Milton Broke Into This Form of Humor.

Shakespeare was an inveterate punster, and Dr. Johnson in his preface to an edition to the poet's works deplores his habit of punning on serious occasions. Hamlet is made to pun when he asks the gravedigger:

"Whose grave's this?"

"Mine, sir," answers the clown.

Hamlet replies:

"I think it be thine indeed, for thou lest in't," and adds later, "Thou dost lie in't to be in't and say it is thine."

To King Richard's question, "What comfort, man? How is't with aged Gaunt?" Shakespeare makes Gaunt reply: "Old Gaunt indeed and gaunt in being old. Within me grief has kept a tedious fast. And who abstains from meat that is not gaunt?"

Milton is the last poet one would think to be guilty of punning, and yet he once wrote a punning epitaph upon a carrier who plied between Cambridge and London and who died after losing his trade on account of the plague.

This carrier was the Hobson whose "choice" is so famous. He used to hire out horses, but travelers had to take the horse Hobson offered or none, so that "Hobson's choice" came to mean no choice at all.

The whole poem, written on the death of this carrier, is full of puns. One passage runs:

Rest that gives all men life gave him his death,
And too much breathing put him out of breath;
Nor were it contradiction to affirm
Too long vacation hastened on his term.

Cowper made a pun which has become quite famous. In the poem describing the ride of John Gilpin, who had to go where his horse took him and eventually arrived at the house of a friend from whom the horse had been borrowed, Gilpin says:

I came because your horse would come.
And if I well forbode,
My hat and wig will soon be here.
They are upon the road.

Tom Hood's humorous poetry is full of puns. In "The Lady's Dream" he writes:

They talked together like two egotists
In conversation all made up of eyes.

And in "The Mermaid of Margate" he says:

On Margate beach, where the sick one roams
And the sentimental reads,
Where the maiden flirts and the widow comes
Like the ocean—to cast her weeds.

But examples could be multiplied indefinitely. Hood's best known pun reads:

His death, which happened in his berth,
At forty odd befell.
They went and told the sexton, and
The sexton tolled the bell.

—Pearson's Weekly.

The Three Scutaris.

By this time we should all know enough about the near east not to confound the various Scutaris—the one in Albania, the one opposite Constantinople and the one in southern Greece. It is curious that each name comes from a different original form. The Greek Scutari is otherwise Scatari; the Albanian one is the Illyrian Scodra, and the Asiatic one is the Turkish Uskudar. This last means a courier carrying royal orders from station to station and commemorates the fact that this place, the ancient Chrysopolis, or City of Gold, was the starting point of the Asiatic couriers.—Youth's Companion.

The Limit In Politeness.

A certain professor is unusually courteous, both in and out of the classroom. One day he made a bonfire in his back garden. The flames, creeping rapidly through the dry stubble, frightened him, and he believed his house was in imminent danger. So he ran wildly down the street, crying at the top of his voice:

"Help! Fire! Fire! Help!"

And then, as if thinking himself too abrupt and urgent, he politely added, so his neighbors say:

"That is, all those who can conveniently do so."—New York Times.

A woman from the city was spending the summer in a small town, and one day while doing her marketing she asked the butcher how he happened to choose his business.

He hesitated a moment, and then—"Well, I don't know," he answered, "but I always was fond of animals."—Everybody's.

She Learns Too.

There had been a family row.

"Well," remarked the alleged head of the house, "a man learns a few things when he gets married. Yes, sir, a man lives and learns."

"That may be," retorted the feminine half of the sketch, "but the school of experience doesn't bar co-eds."

His Grouchy Views.

"What has become of the fine old names like Prudence and Patience?"

"They wouldn't be appropriate now," declared the old grouch. "If I had a couple of daughters I'd name 'em Extravagance and Hysteria."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

C. B. Hess Dead.

Another old soldier has answered the last roll call before the Great Commander of all arms and all nations. Last Saturday at 11 o'clock P. M., after fifteen minutes illness C. B. Hess gently fell asleep. He had been in his usual health and during the evening chatted with neighbors and retired for the night cheery and well and fifteen minutes later he was dead. Neuralgia of the heart was the cause. Claude Buchannan was a son of Lewis and Sarah Slack Hess, early settlers of Penns valley where he was born July 26th, 1838. In 1861 he entered the Pine Grove Academy to fit himself for teaching. When President Lincoln called for troops young Hess gave up his books and enlisted as a Corporal in Company I, 15th Penna. Regt. He was captured at Ball's Bluff and spent nearly two years in Libby and Saulsburg prisons. On his return home he resumed his studies and for twenty years was a successful school teacher, in the summer turning his attention to farming. His first wife was Ellen Williams, and to this union three sons and three daughters were born: Joseph, of Columbus, Ohio; Lewis, of Canada; Robert, of Hammond, Ind.; Mrs. Blair Miller, of Hollidaysburg; Mrs. John Haines, of Altoona, and Mrs. Mattie Slagle, of State College. Surviving also is a sister, Mrs. S. D. Gardner, of Altoona. He was a member of the Patrons of Husbandry and also of the Methodist Episcopal church and an active worker in the branches of both. He was identified with Capt. J. O. Campbell Post, No. 272, G. A. R., and was chaplain for a number of years. Few men were better known than Mr. Hess as a citizen and teacher. In politics he was a staunch Republican. About ten years ago he engaged in mercantile business, retiring two years ago. His second wife who was Anna Ward and to whom he was married December 27, 1907, also survives. Burial services were held from the late home Tuesday morning at 2.30 o'clock, Rev. Mr. Nearhoff officiating. A squad of G. A. R. comrades laid him to rest in Meeks cemetery. A delegation included Emanuel Noll, Hammon Sechler, Amos Garbrick, W. H. Noll, Jr., William Bilger and W. A. Hoover

Mrs. Adam Smith Dead.

Mrs. Eliza Malissa Smith, wife of Adam Smith, residing on the Humes farm, beyond the red brick school building, died suddenly Saturday night while walking out Bishop Street enroute home. She was carried into the Clevenstine home, near the school building, but was dead when a physician arrived. Her death was due to apoplexy. She had been in town during the evening and shortly after 9 o'clock with Miss Anna Brown, started to walk home. When in front of the school building she was taken ill and rested on the school yard steps for a short time. She endeavored to resume her journey but soon collapsed in the street and so far as is known died instantly. The deceased before her marriage was Eliza Malissa Weaver, a daughter of James and Elizabeth Weaver, having been born in Jefferson County 63 years ago. She married Adam Smith 44 years ago. Surviving are her husband and these children: Henry Thompson Smith, of DuBois; Laura Jennie Wike, of Andicott, N. Y.; Rose Annette Armstrong, of Clearfield; Elizabeth Joanna Ritchie, of Philadelphia, and Minnie May Colson, of Nettleton, Pa. There survive also these brothers and sisters: Henry Weaver, of DuBois; William, of Big Run; Mary London, of Cloe, Pa.; James and Robert, of DuBois; Means, of Punxsutawney; Jacob, residing in the West, and Myrtle, of Big Run. Funeral services were held from the late home on Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock, Rev. Dr. E. H. Yocum officiating. Interment was made in the Union cemetery.

Mrs. Wm. J. Irwin Dead.

After a brief illness, June Myrtle, wife of William J. Irwin, of near Canan Station, died at the Altoona hospital, at 7.10 o'clock Saturday evening, of heart trouble. She was admitted to the institution on May 16. Deceased was born in Centre County, April 20, 1869, the daughter of the late James R. and Mary Eilenberger, of Eldorado. She was a devout member of the First Lutheran church and an active member of the Bible class and the Ladies' Missionary society. She is survived by her husband and three children, Mrs. S. P. Good, of Eldorado; Mrs. W. G. Stiffler, of Roselawn and Luther, of near Eldorado. She is also survived by her mother and one sister, Mrs. P. P. Fagan, of Altoona, and two brothers, Harry and John Eilenberger, of Eldorado.

The remains were taken to her late home near Canan Station, from where the funeral was held on Wednesday afternoon, with services at the house at 2 o'clock, conducted by the Rev. Dr. Marion J. Kline. Interment was made in Carson Valley cemetery.

Mrs. John Carney Dead.

Mrs. John Carney, of East Logan Street, died on Monday morning at 8 o'clock from ailments incident to old age. At the time of her passing away she was 90 years old. The deceased was born in Ireland, the daughter of Patrick and Rose Burk. Her maiden name was Kathrine Burk. Her husband preceded her to the grave. She was married forty years ago at St. John's Catholic church in Bellefonte. Funeral services were held yesterday from the Catholic church, Rev. Father McArdle officiating.

CO-OPERATIVE STORE

Walter Cohen Organizes Company to Conduct Large Establishment.

Announcement was made this week by Walter Cohen, manager of the Claster store in Bellefonte, of the organization of a company for the purpose of purchasing and conducting a large department store and produce exchange here. The company was granted a charter on May 13th, it being known as the "Co-operative Investment Company of Pennsylvania, Incorporated." The officers chosen are Walter Cohen, president; George A. Beezer, vice president, and G. Oscar Gray, secretary and treasurer. The directors are Clayton Brown, H. S. Taylor, Ellis L. Orvis, H. Laird Curtin and the three officers.

According to Mr. Cohen the company is to be capitalized at $100,000, shares of stock to be $1.00 par value, each. The aim is to sell shares of stock to farmers and other residents of Centre County and thereby interest them as stockholders and also patrons. Mr. Cohen states that a large established store will be purchased and expanded into a general department store. Of the proposed $100,000 capital stock from $20,000 to $25,000 is to be applied to purchasing a store, $15,000 to $20,000 is to be devoted to expanding the store and $10,000 is to be used in establishing a produce exchange where farmers may bring the output of their gardens, dairies, etc. An option on a business establishment in Bellefonte has been obtained and some shares of stock have already been sold throughout the County. Several representatives of the company are now engaged in canvassing the County to interest farmers and others in the project.

Pennsylvania R. R.

W. C. T. U. CONVENTION

be a missionary to get every mother, wife and friend to know the meaning of the cause. Mrs. La Mance then spoke, attacking not only the liquor traffic but kindred vices as child labor, sweat shop, cigarette habit and the social evil. It is the mother who has the right to complain against the cigarette habit. She is the one to bear the burden of maintaining the population. Therefore, she is the one who loves the child more than anyone else could possibly love it and the one to protest against the cigarette habit which shortens the boy in stature and lessens his weight by fifteen pounds. The most serious objection to the cigarette habit is that it hinders his development. Because of his decreased efficiency many of the larger firms do not employ boys who smoke cigarettes. Two and one half million children in the United States are worked as slaves—many are forced to work in hot atmosphere full of fine pieces of glass—and under such conditions they cannot escape developing consumption. Looms formerly run by men for three dollars per day are now run by children for forty-five cents per day. Pennsylvania should be proud of having a child labor law. If it is a success it will be the first wet state to have a successful child labor law. Liquor men have always fought it. The social evil is the worst evil known. Twelve years ago, it is a known fact, that the liquor organization went into partnership with this evil. Since 1904 one hundred and forty million dollars were devoted to gamblers and madames by the liquor organization to run such places. The number of such houses has increased since this partnership by twice the number, and today six hundred thousand are engaged in the business because they are forced into it. What we want are laws that will imprison those that are engaged in the business. Women could have it in ten years if they had the vote. The W. C. T. U. started the fight in every state in the union. Sixty-six years ago the United States was wet. Now we have nineteen dry states, with seven voting on it next year.

After Mrs. La Mance's address Mr. Galen Wood, secretary of the Intercollegiate Prohibition League, told of their work in State College. Starting five years ago with less than five men, it has now an enrollment of over seventy paid up members. The League has been active the past year in deputation work. Over seventy communities have been reached by the members who spoke in the churches, on street corners of towns or from the auto. The Leage is ready for work at any time should the W. C. T. U. desire it.

Singing "Centre County Dry" by the Prohibition League and prayer by Dr. Carrol closed the evening session, after which an informal reception was held in the church.

At Friday morning's session after devotional exercises, conducted by the Evangelistic Superintendent, Mrs. Erehart, of Philipsburg, and the reading of the minutes, Mr. Edgett, vice president of the State Young People's Branch of the W. C. T. U., was introduced and spoke enthusiastically of that department of the work. Miss Gladys Dunkle, of State College, was elected by the convention as superintendent of the Y. P. B., Mrs. Ida Harter, of Rebersburg, was elected superintendent of the flower Mission Department, and Mrs. Freada Bailey, of Centre Hall, Superintendent of the Press work of the county. Mrs. Walter Dudley, of Blanchard, was elected Superintendent of Medal Contest work. Mrs. Clees announced that we have not held enough silver medal contests to permit us to hold a gold medal contes. Reports from local presidents were then given, which proved very interesting indeed and showed much interest in the work by the unions and increasing activity along important lines. The local option movement was again brought up and the convention was urged by the president not to support wet candidates for public office. Mrs. La Mance followed her on the same subject. Reports from the Superintendent followed those of Mrs. Ridge on L. T. L. and Y. P. B. work and Dr. Schad on medical Temperance and narcotics were read by Miss Rhoads, in the absence of these Superintendents. Mrs. Ridge's report showed that there are now twelve L. T. Ls. in the county, five organized this last year. They are Centre Hall, Bellefonte, Milesburg, Fleming, Orviston, Pleasant Gap, Snow Shoe, Sandy Ridge, State College, Philipsburg, Howard and Blanchard. Dr. Schad's report showed good work done, literature being sent to each union, to Bellefonte Academy students and to thirty physicians in the county.

Dr. Irving L. Foster, of the College Faculty and 1st Vice President of the Men's Centre County Temperance League, was next introduced and spoke of the recent campaign work in the county, and though defeated not discouraged, but rather encouraged by the decided increase in temperance sentiment shown by the results of the May primaries. He thanked the W. C. T. U. for its loyal support and declared that a moral victory was won at least, if not the nominal one. A letter was then read from Mr. M. I. Gardner announcing himself as in favor of local Option and all good temperance legislation, including state wide prohibition, and would be true to these principles if elected to the Legislature next fall.

Mr. Hamilton was introduced and spoke of how prohibition does prohibit. He expressed his satisfaction at the growth in temperance sentiment and congratulated the convention on its good attedannce, saying it was so much better in that respect than those of other organizations he had attended.

He also expressed himself as much impressed with the amount of good work being done as shown by the reports from the local unions.

Superintendent of Mothers' Meetings and T. L. B. work, Mrs. Mary Buck, of Unionville, gave a good report and spoke touchingly on the subject. Mrs. Askins, of Fleming could not be present owing to serious illness in her family, but she has done valuable work among the railroad employees. Mrs. Robert Beach, of Bellefonte, Superintendent of Suffrage, reported good work done and urged more in the way of securing speakers on this subject and concentrated effort. At this time the election of officers for the ensuing year as taken up, resulting in all the old officers being re-elected, except the efficient treasurer, Miss Savilla Rearick who is to be married and leave the county, her sister in the organization relinquishing her with sadness as she has endeared herself to all, and has been so faithful and capable an officer. Mrs. Melissa Kapp, of State College was elected in her place. The other officers elected are President, Miss Rebecca Naomi Rhoads, of Bellefonte; Vice President at Large, Mrs. John P. Harris, Bellefonte; Corresponding Secretary, Mrs. Anna H. Clees, of Philipsburg; Recording Secretary, Mrs. V. C. Ridge, of Blanchard. The evangelistic Superintendent, Mrs. Erehart, of Philipsburg, then gave her report in an earnest address, emphasizing the all-importance of relying less upon our own strength which is merest weakness without the Everlasting Arms to continually support one and urged more spirituality in the meetings. Mrs. Williams, Superintendent of Sabbath Observance, next reported good work done and urged more. Prof. Wright, of the College, husband of the hostess president, here spoke words of encouragement and said he had been a Loyal Temperance Legion boy, and asked for support of the W. C. T. U. in the coming campaign on behalf of the Men's Temperance League. Miss Bechdel, of Blanchard, Superintendent of Sabbath School Work, then gave her report, urging more work along this line. Miss Rhoads reported very briefly on account of lack of time some of the work done by the Scientific Temperance Instruction Department of which she is superintendent,—literature furnished every union and essay contests held in Unionville, State College (both at the high School and College), Bellefonte and Centre Hall, two of these to be held in very near future. Last year the fifty dollar national prize was won by Mr. Roderiguez a senior at State College, in the foreign born contest. Prayer by Mrs. La Mance followed and adjournment. Re-convened at 1.30 and after devotional exercises conducted by Mrs. Pletcher, of Howard, and prayer by Rev. Traub, the convention voted to meet next year at Unionville. A beautifully rendered solo with auto-harp accompanied by Mrs. Wright followed.

Conference led by Mrs. La Mance, questions concerning methods of work and vital issues answered. Motion made and passed that we as a convention send resolution to Washington endorsing the Smith-Hughes Bill for a National Censorship of Moving Pictures. At close of conference Mrs. La Mance spoke.

After this an interesting silver medal contest was held participated in by members of the Loyal Temperance Legions of various parts of the county as follows: Lois Foreman, Bellefonte; Richard Hoffman, Howard; Evelyn McClellen, Unionville; Helen Bechdel, Blanchard; John Holmes, State College; Gerald Davis, Bellefonte, and Miriam C. Foss, Centre Hall. The judges, three members of the College Faculty, selected by Dr. Pattee, had difficulty in rendering a decision as all spoke so remarkably well. Lois Foreman was the winner of the silver medal and Richard Hoffman of Howard, was awarded honorable mention. A silver monogram M. C. pin was given to each of the other contestants. While the judges were making their decision six little girls repeated a demonstration with dolls and songs, given the evening before, upon request. Committee on resolutions report by Mrs. Clees was adopted as a whole by the convention—briefly were that we stand true to our platform work for Local Option as steps to prohibition—keeping it always in sight; take action on Sabbath desecration; work for law and legislation; work for votes for women; more strict censorship of moving pictures; to retain T. L. B. as a separate department; extend thanks to ladies of State College for their cordial hospitality; to pastor and people of Presbyterian church for giving their beautiful church for the meetings; to Dr. Sparks for his inspiring address; also to Dr. Pattee, Dean Blaisdell, Prof. Hamilton, Dr. Foster and Dean Holmes for their most helpful addresses and encouraging words, and lastly to the convention speaker, Mrs. La Mance, for her great help and inspiration.

Dean Arthur Holmes was next introduced to the convention and spoke in a wonderfully interesting way upon "The Pschology of Alcoholism." He advocated S. T. I. work; effects of all harmful drugs as well as alcohol ought to be taught in the public schools; including all narcotics, tobacco, opium, etc. Alcohol is not a stimulant—always a narcotic—always a poison, even in the smallest possible quantity; it never gave any additional strength; never cured a snake bite; it is a poison with a peculiar effect upon the nerve tissues most closely connected with the mind, and always attacks first the highest and latest developed tissues in the front brain.

Dean Holmes' address was listened to with the keenest attention by the convention and with most profound appreciation, of this privilege granted them. After this the "open forum" was instituted, which called forth remarks from several present on the moving picture question. Motion was made and carried that each union in whose community is a moving picture show shall appoint a special committee to act as local censors of the pictures shown and shall endeavor in every way possible to elevate the tons of the moving pictures, so as to protect the young people and children. It was strongly recommended also that all W. C. T. U. women should guard against subscribing to papers and magazines that contain liquor advertisements, it being brought out by this discussion that most of the best magazines will not allow such advertising matter in their columns and that the list of such newspapers and magazines is growing longer every year so that after while the liquor traffic will not have access to any reputable publishers' columns, a cause for great rejoicing to the temperance army, which is growing by leaps and bounds.

The time for adjournment came and after the closing prayer all arose and every one present joined hands singing "Blest Be The Tie That Binds"—following the custom of the state convention, and thus ended one of the most successful conventions ever held by the Centre County Woman's Christian Temperance Union.

French Press Troubles.

The English and the German languages alike give the French newspapers quite as much trouble as papers on this side the water find in French and German names. Recently a Parisian paper revealed at some length the wonderful activity of "General Headquarters," a British commander in Mesopotamia! Some days before, another general, unknown, an Austrian this time, made his appearance in the translation of a Viennese bulletin, published in a number of Swiss-French papers. This was "General K-u-k," who was named as commanding the right wing of the army operating against the Montenegrins. In some of the Parisian journals military critics gravely discussed General K-u-k and the composition of his forces. Somewhat later a note appeared in the Swiss papers acknowledging that an error had been made at Geneva in transmission and that the initials K-u-k, of three words, had been mistaken for the name of a general, the abbreviation being intended for the German terms, "Kaiserlich und koeniglich" (imperial and royal).

Problem of Pumpernickel.

Is pumpernickel bread or cake?

This question is agitating legal and commercial circles in Frankfort-on-the-Main. If this delicacy is a bread, its sale is limited under the card system, whereas if it is cake it may be sold ad lib.

The police of Frankfort had been trying to stop the sale of pumpernickel without the necessary "bread card," but when a case was taken to court the decision was to the effect that it was a delicacy and could be sold accordingly. But this didn't settle the matter, as the authorities appealed the case and declared they would keep on arresting violators of the card rule.

The Frankforter Zeitung of November 30 says an exception is made in the case of pumpernickel made from flour sold at the government distribution stations especially for that purpose.

Serbians Gnawed Bark Off Trees.

The English Red Cross unit attached to the Serbian army had to abandon $5,000 worth of tents, several motor cars and valuable sets of operating instruments, besides leaving the wounded behind in the hands of the advancing Bulgarians.

Two of these nurses have reached Saloniki with nothing but the clothes they had on. Everything else was lost. The two young women had tramped for seven days, making 24 miles in one day.

Roads were covered with mud and the women had to spend the night in barns and earthen hovels. Some of the refugees and prisoners were so hungry, said the nurses, they they ate the bark of trees. They declared the patience and endurance of the Serbians was marvelous and there was no complaining.

Country's Radio Stations.

The bureau of navigation, department of commerce, has recently issued the 1915 edition of "Radio Stations of the United States." This list shows that there are now 5,073 radio stations in the United States, an increase of 1,139 since 1914. They are classified as follows: Government and commercial land stations, 224; government and commercial ship stations, 895; special land stations, 118; general and restricted amateur stations, 3,836.

Her Punishment.

He—Does your father object to my staying so late?

She—No! He says it serves me right for being in when you call.

The Price of Efficiency.

Mrs. Outlate—Why are you so late?

Outlate—My dear, wash all ready to come home at twelve, but couldn't think of an excushe till three.

Looking Ahead.

"I don't see how in the world Edith can marry that old Mr. Rocksley."

"I do. It's the only possible way she can become his widow."

A Bull In the Pulpit.

"I am requested to say," said the young dominie, who was acting as a substitute, "that there will be no meeting of the Ladies' Sewing guild this week as usual, owing to the fact that all the ladies of the guild will be out of town. Should any others wish to take up the work they may do so."

Then he paused, but it was too late. —Richmond Times-Dispatch.

HE TEMPTS DEATH

Deadly Dangers a Nitroglycerin Maker Must Face.

NEVER IS SURE OF HIS LIFE.

Any Moment the Worker In a Nitrator May Be Blown to Atoms—A Calling That Demands Coolness, Prudence and Daring—One Man's Experience.

Nitroglycerin is made by ordinary sweet glycerin acting with a mixture of strong sulphuric and nitric acid. The glycerin is dropped by a very thin stream slowly into a mixture of three parts nitric and five parts sulphuric acid. During the process the containing vessel is kept cool by a water jacket, and the acid mixture is agitated by a stream of cool air. The temperature is maintained at about 80 degrees. After the operation the whole mixture is drawn off into a tank and is allowed to stand in this vessel, cooled by a water jacket. The glycerin, which is now nitroglycerin, immediately begins to come to the top like cream on milk. This is at once taken care of and is put through various processes to cleanse it of all remaining traces of acid.

In no department of our plant must greater care be exercised than in the nitrator, which is the name given to the building where nitroglycerin is manufactured.

Explosions are frequent, and it takes a man of iron nerve to conduct this department. It is like going into battle every day. Yet in the face of this we have one man who has successfully made nitroglycerin for twenty years, and he lives to tell you about it, only he won't. He is as reticent as the sphinx.

Like any other man of great courage, he does not boast, and John Viewberger will talk about anything except the miracle of his continued existence. I can only say that Divine Providence, a cool head and hands and a stout heart have kept him at his work.

The acid fumes that fill the building at all times when nitration is taking place have long since eaten away the very teeth in his head, but not his pluck. It is a fact that he is provided with a new set of false teeth on an average twice a year. The hair on his head has long ago disappeared, and the fumes have tanned his skin to the color of bronze until he resembles a cave man of old. And yet he has never had a day of sickness in these twenty years. He thinks, as I do, that no disease, no matter how virulent, could successfully combat the nitric fumes that he inhales. So his work has its compensations, if you are pleased to look at it that way.

While nitration of glycerin is going on Viewberger sits on a high stool, his arms stretched over the nitrating machine, one hand on a faucet that controls the flow of glycerin into the acid, the other hand on a valve regulating the cooled compressed air that is forced into the mixture and his eye glued to the thermometer that extends well down into the mixture. I have said that the glycerin undergoes nitration at a temperature of 80 degrees. The temperature is regulated by the quantity of glycerin that flows into the acid. If the temperature begins to rise above 80 degrees he closes his valve slightly, reducing the flow of glycerin, and increases the flow of cool air.

Any little foreign substance that might get into the mixture, even through the acid of glycerin or otherwise, would cause immediate trouble. The slightest leak in the water cooling coils, permitting a little water to get into the mixture, would be the signal for the thermometer to do a marathon, and in a few minutes the whole mixture would reach the degree of heat that would result in an explosion. Viewberger cannot desert his post when the temperature begins to rise rapidly. This condition frequently takes place, and most of the time it can be reduced by cutting off the flow of glycerin entirely and by turning on the air to the full pressure of fifty pounds. Sometimes, however, in spite of all, it will continue to rise, and Viewberger knows or feels that he has lost control. He must leave his mixture to its fate and "dig out."

His building, the nitrator, is located on a hill higher than its surroundings. The hill is a high sand dune. Immediately back of the stool on which he sits is a big door that is always left open when he is manufacturing. Viewberger's method of exit or getaway is to jump out of this door and roll down the hill. While he is on his way the explosion takes place. He has done this some twenty times and yet has never received an injury. He has never been struck with flying debris, although the air is filled with flying pieces of lead and iron. Does history record a greater miracle? Dug out of the sand semiconscious from the impact of an explosion, in the course of half an hour he has been quite himself again, ready to go to work if need be, his only regret being the loss of property sustained by the company.—Willard Fay in Collier's Weekly.

Denmark In Her Prime.

In the twelfth century Denmark was the mightiest state in northern Europe, and the Baltic had become a "Danish Mediterranean." This supremacy was short lived, though, and the country never again regained the power and prestige which she had won and lost at the point of the sword.—Argonaut.

Reason For Joy.

MIXED IT WITH MYSTERY.

But the Secret of Portland Cement Was Solved by a Busybody.

Portland cement may be defined as a product made by burning limestone and clay, which have been mixed so as to form a certain composition, and grinding the resulting "clinker" to powder.

In the early days much mystery surrounded the manufacture of Portland cement when it was first discovered by a bricklayer of Leeds, England. He found that by mixing water with a compound of Thames chalk and Medway mud he could compound an artificial water cement and determined that no one should discover his secret. When employed in manufacturing his raw mixture he is said to have attired himself in a long black gown and the pointed hat of the mystic and to have recited mysterious incantations during his operations.

But a curious onlooker who determined to ascertain his ingredients and methods had a sample analyzed by a chemist, whose result showed 90 per cent phosphate of lime. Thinking that he had solved the secret, he began to calcine all the bones he could gather up in the village, much to the discomfort and objections of his neighbors, who finally induced him to desist. Following, however, the old system of cut-and-try, he finally solved the problem and eventually produced a cement equal to that of the original compounder, and the great industry began to thrive at once.

In this country the Portland cement industry had its beginnings in the Lehigh valley in Pennsylvania, chiefly in Lehigh and Northampton counties, where John W. Eckert, a chemist, discovered that there occurred a limestone composed of approximately the correct ingredients necessary for the manufacture of Portland cement.—Smithsonian Institution Bulletin.

A Recipe For Success.

"If I were obliged to pack a lot of advice into a few words," says Congressman Edward J. King of Illinois in the American Magazine, "for the benefit of poor boys I would tell them to decide as early in life as possible what they intend to do. There is nothing so helpful to a tired traveler as a destination. This thing of not knowing where you're going, but being merely on your way, is a delusion and a folly."

Treasurer's Sale of Unseated Land

for non-payment of taxes for the years 1914 and 1915, as well as certain lots of Seated Land. In accordance with the provisions of the Act of Assembly, entitled "An Act directing the mode of selling unseated lands for taxes and other purposes," passed the 13th day of March 1815, and the various supplements thereof, together with the other various Acts of Assembly relating thereto, I, David Chambers, Treasurer of the County of Centre, hereby give notice to all persons concerned, that unless the taxes due and remaining unpaid on the following described tracts or parts of tracts of unseated land, as well as such lots of seated land, situated in said County of Centre, be paid before the day of sale, the whole or such part of each tract of said lands as will pay the taxes and costs chargeable thereon, will be exposed to public sale or outcry, at the Court House in the Borough of Bellefonte, in said county, commencing on the second Monday of June next (the 12th day thereof) and continuing, by adjournment from day to day, until all are sold.

J. T. HOOVER A SUICIDE

Shoots Himself With Revolver—Was Despondent Over Business Troubles.

Despondent because he failed as a moving picture theatre proprietor, John T. Hoover, son of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. W. Hoover, of Williamsport, formerly of Philipsburg, shot and killed himself at his home in Altoona on Wednesday night of last week after paying all his debts and carefully planning the rash deed.

Mr. Hoover had located in Altoona three months ago, purchasing the Crystal theatre, moving there from Uniontown. He operated the theatre until the day before he took his life when he disposed of it to the original owner. After telling his wife and son he would take them to another part of the city on a pleasure jaunt and urging them to go to the second floor, Hoover reclined on a lounge and placed a 32 calibre revolver in his mouth. When discharged, the weapon sent the leaden missle into his brain. He was found by his wife and taken to the Altoona hospital, where he succumbed less than an hour later. Ill health and worry over business troubles are thought to be responsible for the suicide.

The deceased was born at Julian, April 19, 1869. He was reared in Philipsburg and was educated in the public schools of that place and Lehigh university, where he was graduated as a civil engineer. He was married a number of years ago and had resided in western Pennsylvania for the last ten or twelve years.

His wife, Mrs. Mary B. Hoover, survives, with his parents and a son, John Bartley, and a daughter, Miss Jeanette, both at home. These brothers and sisters also survive: Mrs. Henry Putney, of Boston, Mass., Malcolm, Glen Rock; George, and Miss Eva and Esther Hoover, of Williamsport.

Henry M. Yingling Dead.

Last Thursday morning Henry M. Yingling, an early settler, passed away at his home in Bald Eagle valley of diseases incident to old age. Deceased was born near Bellwood, November 28, 1832. In 1871 he moved into upper Bald Eagle valley, where he resided up until death. Surviving to mourn his death are the following children: A. J. Yingling, of Osceola; M. F. Yingling, of Tyrone; Mrs. John W. Morgan, of Summerhill; Mrs. Frank Owens, of Gold Beach, Oregon, and Charles Yingling at home. Mr. Yingling was a farmer and a carpenter by occupation, and throughout his life he was honored and respected by a large circle of friends. He enlisted as a private, September 9, 1863, in Company H, 143, P. V. I., and was discharged June 20, 1865. He participated in the battles of the Wilderness, Weldon Railroad and Hatches Run, and was in many other engagements with his regiment. He was wounded in the battle of the Wilderness, May 6 1864. He was an honered member of Col. D. M. Jones Post No. 172, G. A. R. He was also a devoted member of the Church of the Brethren and when in health found pleasure in attending the services. Burial was made on Saturday.

State Normal Honor Students.

The following members of the senior class at the Lock Haven State Normal School, having attained the highest standing in all studies during the junior and senior years, have been selected to form the honor roll of the class of 1916:—1, Florence Dubler, Lock Haven; 2, Esther Lowry, Lock Haven; 3, E. J. Sullivan, State College; 4, Ethel Smith, Lock Haven; 5, Mildred Riordan, Penfield, Clearfield county; 6, Dean Swartz, Lock Haven; 7, Edgar Klinger, Pine Station; 8, Charles B. King, West Hickory, Forest county; 9, Clarence Shull, Trevorton, Northumberland county; 10, Mabel McNeel, Altoona; 11, Anne Gibb, Lock Haven; 12, Hazel Peck, Castanea; 13, Hazel Lentz, Bellefonte.

Upheld Removal of Sealer.

The supreme court last week affirmed the decision of Judge Singleton Bell, of Clearfield, in the suit brought by S. J. Hoyt against Sealer of Weights and Measures Lowell seeking to enjoin the latter from occupying the position to which he was appointed after Hoyt had been removed by the Clearfield county commissioners. Judge Bell held that Lowell was the rightful incumbent of the office, and rendered judgment against Hoyt.

Mrs. Charles McCool Dead.

Mrs. Amy Ruhl McCool, wife of Charles McCool, died at her home in Spring Mills on May 14th after an illness which had kept her bedfast since Christmas. Funeral services were held last Thursday morning in the Lutheran church and burial made in the Presbyterian cemetery, Rev. D. S. Kurtz officiating. She was aged about twenty-four years. Her husband survives with no children. Her mother, sister Mary, and brother Harry, at home, also survive her.

John Houck Dead.

John Houck, a well known farmer of near Guyer, died suddenly Friday evening May 12th. He had just put his team away in the stable and when he did not return to the house at the usual time his wife started in search of him and found him lying dead in the barnyard, he having evidently started for the house when he expired. His mother, wife, seven children, and eleven brothers and sisters survive him. Burial was made in the Ross cemetery.

THE TENTED CITY

A Wonderful Business System Controls Carl Hagenbeck Wallace Circus.

The show grounds of the Carl Hagenbeck Wallace Circus is a city within itself, lacking only a town council and a State charter. It has its own lawyers, postmaster, dentists, doctors, carpenters, painters, detectives, blacksmiths, wagonmakers, laundrymen, barbers, shoemakers, tailors, sail-makers harnessmakers, storekeepers and photographers. It supports a great hotel, in which thousands of meals are cooked and eaten every day in the week.

Twenty-two tents that cover a small-size farm houses the circus in the day time. The largest tent is 540 feet in length, and among the biggest ever constructed. Six gigantic oak poles form the chief support. Any one of them is larger than the largest mast on a sea-sailing vessel; the smallest tent is the one used to house the circus barber shop. At night the circus is transported on a show train one mile in length and divided into three sections; another sun ses the great institution in another city. In a single season the circus train travels almost 30,000 miles, making stops in about 200 cities and giving 400 performances. The big show has exhibited in every city of any size in rhe United States. While the Hagenbeck-Wallace Show is an American institution and entirely controlled by capital of this country, yet the show is equally well known in the old countries.

The wonderful creative ideas of Carl Hagenbeck and the remarkable system of B. E. Wallace are still the active principles of the management. Not [a] year has passed without improvement and growth. On Wednesday, May 31st, the big show will come to Bellefonte with an entire new equipment. The program that is offered is the best this season in the history of the organization. There are more than 400 artists on the list that offer new and sensational novelties and thrills. Fifty clowns will add fun. The Carl Hagenbeck trained wild animals will be seen in an immense steel arena. The circus-day festivities will be opened by an immense street parade at 10 o'clock in the morning on the day of exhibition

Loaves And Ladies

A Victory For the Wives

By CLARISSA MACKIE

Alonzo Dibble's store on the main street of Roseville and in the same room with the postoffice was the forum in which the male citizens of the village got together to discuss every new departure from the beaten track of the world's ongoing.

Alonzo Dibble, being pecuniarily interested in the sale of twenty-five cent packages of smoking tobacco and cigars at prices all the way up from one cent stogies to five cent perfectos, took care that the meetings should not want for a topic and that the debate should not end when it struck a rut.

While the men of Roseville had been discussing these problems the women had started the suffrage society. The men had not yet entered upon this topic and might not have done so had not Amos Gwynne squelched the war in Mexico by his unpatriotic remark. There had been no sales of stogies for some time, and no one had called for birch beer. The shopkeeper, fearing that the meeting would break up without any more purchases, placed the palm of his hand on the counter and flourished his other arm dramatically.

"I say," he shouted, "there's more honor for a woman to bake a perfect loaf of bread than it is to vote nine times for a president of the United States!"

There was an instant's silence among the men gathered around the glowing stove; then Hen Lariday broke the stillness.

"There ain't much honor for any one, man, woman or child, to vote nine times for president—not on the same day, no, sir!"

After the laughter had died away the storekeeper resumed his exhortation.

"It's all right to make fun of it, Hen, but you ain't got no wife, and your ma is one of the God fearin', old fashioned kind who don't want no votes but the vote of her family that she's the best mother and the best cook in the world. But what I do mean is this: Ever since the women of Roseville started this here Ladies' Suffrage society they've stopped being such good housekeepers. Look at the business in homemade baking that Mrs. Dell Smith has built up. Why, I'll bet I've sold more flour to Mrs. Smith than to any one else in town. See 'em come in here day after day and buy Mrs. Smith's bread and take it home to their families. I'll bet there's more men in this here store this minute who said to his wife at supper tonight, 'What good bread Mrs. Dell Smith makes!' When a man says that, well, his wife ain't got anything to be proud of!"

"You're right, Alonzo," agreed James Gray. "But what we going to do about it?"

Alonzo was distinctly cross eyed. Now, one of his orbs was fixed on James Gray and the other wandered over to the door where a woman's form stood motionless by a barrel of brooms.

"Yes, what we going to do about it?" bawhawed Hen Lariday.

"Can't do anything," said Alonzo slowly. "But I don't blame any man for getting tired of a woman who blats all day about running the gov'ment when she can't even bake a decent loaf of bread! Some day the women will wake up and find they've got the vote—and nothing else, by gosh!"

The door closed gently.

The woman by the barrel of brooms had slipped out.

"Who was that?" asked Hen Lariday.

"Susie Pinkham."

"Great heck! Do you suppose she heard what you said, Alonzo?"

"I hope so," said the storekeeper grimly.

"If she did," went on Hen impressively, "the news is running like wildfire through the hull village. Susie Pinkham's the worst gossip in Roseville.

"And the best is Hen Lariday!" jibed Alonzo.

James Gray walked slowly up the street toward home. He was turning in his mind all that Alonzo had said about bread and women, and he had reason to agree with the storekeeper on more than one point of his argument.

Mrs. James Gray was the president of the Ladies' Suffrage society, and she it was who was urging the fair members to affiliate themselves with the state organization. It was Mrs. Gray who had suggested to Dell Smith's wife that home baking would be a profitable enterprise, and from that moment the idea had taken possession of Roseville women.

Husbands found delicious homemade bread on the table, but Mrs. Smith had baked it; likewise crisp cookies and loaf cake and pies. The members of the society to a woman turned their weekly baking over to the industrious little woman who was not even a member of their club.

"Oh, I haven't got any time," Mrs. Smith had good naturedly said in excuse. "I'm helping Dell pay off the mortgage. When that's done I'll think about it."

Meantime she baked and baked, and the women of the society met and debated and tried to better conditions in the village.

James Gray was thinking about these things. He did not marvel at Alonzo's outburst of wrath. Alonzo's wife was secretary of the society, and instead of keeping his books as she had heretofore she had pleaded too much other work in hand, so Alonzo had hired a bookkeeper.

The supper table was set when James Gray entered the house. His wife was perusing a pamphlet and smiled a greeting over the top of it, but she went back to her reading without making any remark.

The table looked very inviting. There were an immaculate cloth, the white and gold china, a platter of pink boiled ham from the store, a dish of store pickles, another dish of tinned baked beans, a glass dish of canned peaches from the store, some of Mrs. Smith's delicious graham bread and a plate of cake that was undeniably Mrs. Smith's production.

James washed his face and hands and brushed his hair; then he sat glumly down to supper. Mrs. Gray had put away the pamphlet and was sitting behind the teapot when he entered.

There were only two of them, for their daughter, Annibel, was married and lived across the way with her husband, Oscar Wren.

"Good bread!" muttered James darkly, as he helped himself to a second slice.

"Isn't it?" asked his wife eagerly. "Lizzie Smith can make the best bread in town."

"She can hold the championship so long as none of the other women compete with her," hinted James morosely.

Mrs. Gray regarded her husband with calm surprise.

"I suppose you were in the store when Alonzo expressed his opinion of the Ladies' Suffrage society?" she asked curiously.

"Susie Pinkham been here?" he countered.

"Why?"

"Oh, I recognize the signs. Please pass me some of Mrs. Smith's cake," he said pleasantly.

Mrs. Gray frowned and was silent during the remainder of the meal.

After supper James put on his coat and went to the lodge meeting. Mrs. James put on her hat and went to a special meeting of her society.

Three weeks later Alonzo Dibble entered his store one evening and found his plump little wife in possession of the bookkeeper's desk.

"Where's Ida Jones?" asked Alonzo.

"I sent her home—paid her off and discharged her," responded his wife, making an entry in the daybook and carefully blotting it. "I've got plenty of time to do this work."

"What? You give up that fool society?" demanded Alonzo.

"No. I can do both if you don't bother me by talking too much," she smiled at him.

"Oh, I ain't got any time to talk," he said hastily. "You know I've got my hands full looking after this store. You can't do more'n one thing at a time," he added as he moved away.

Mrs. Dibble looked at the three clerks nimbly waiting on customers. She glanced at the stuffed man standing by the barn door. She thought of herself in the bookkeeper's cage, and a little smile curled her lip.

"Alonzo certainly has plenty of help," she mused, dipping her pen in the ink.

For a number of weeks Alonzo Dibble was silent on the question of women's votes. He noticed that Mrs. Smith omitted her usual order for flour, and he told his clerks that she was probably buying from his competitor.

On the tables of the members of the suffrage society continued to appear delicious home baked bread, toothsome pies and cakes, and the town rang with the praises accorded Mrs. Dell Smith as a model wife and mother and gave credit to the fact that she was not a member of the society.

"A woman can't be a good wife and mother and 'tend to her baking and brewing and do men's voting too!" declared Alonzo Dibble to his usual audience.

From the back door leading to his house came the calm voice of Alonzo Dibble's wife. Behind her, twenty strong, were the members of the society.

"Fiddlesticks!" said Mrs. Dibble. "Just because a man can't attend to more than one thing at a time it's no indication that a woman may not be able to do two or three things well!"

"Prove it!" barked Alonzo. "Just look at all Mrs. Smith's bread and cake and pies we've been eating, all because our wives ain't got time to do it and run their blamed old society. Pooh!"

A ripple of feminine laughter came from the back door.

"You tell them, Mrs. Smith," urged Mrs. Gray's voice.

"Well," began Mrs. Dell Smith in her brisk manner, "I'll confess I haven't done any baking for any one outside my family for over three weeks. If you men folks have enjoyed your bread and cake and pies I guess it's all to the credit of your wives. I think they patronized my home cooking more to help me pay off the mortgage than anything else." Her voice broke, and she hid herself among her friends.

Mrs. Dibble finished the argument.

"So you see," she said, "the women of Roseville can attend to their housekeeping, do their sewing and bake their own bread and organize a suffrage society and vote when the time comes."

Alonzo Dibble was filling glasses with sweet cider.

"Let us drink to the success of the Ladies' Suffrage society," he said solemnly.

And so ended the discussion of loaves and ladies, it having been proven that the ladies were quite capable of looking out for the loaves.

A blooded boar, shipped via Adams express from Iowa to Frank Colyer, at Coburn, gave the baggage and express agents on the Wednesday night train from Tyrone considerable trouble. When the train was approaching Port Matilda the boar broke out of the wood crate in which he had been shipped. The animal was an unusually large one and quickly demonstrated that he was in possession of the end of the car devoted to express packages. For a few minutes the boar tore up things in general and then collapsed and died. It is supposed its death was due to the long trip in the express car and over exertion. The express company officials in Bellefonte received the dead boar and sent it on to Mr. Colyer, at Coburn.

TENTH ELECTROCUTION

Westmoreland County Murderer Put to Death at Rockview Monday Morning.

Charles Douglass, colored, convicted of an atrocious murder in Westmoreland County, was electrocuted at Rockview early Monday morning. Douglass was the second colored man to be electrocuted and the tenth person, all told, to pay the penalty in the electric chair since the new law for capital punishment became effective in Pennsylvania.

At 7.02 o'clock Douglass entered the execution room. One minute later he was strapped in the electric chair and at 7.04 the first shock was applied. This was of 2100 volts and was continued 18 seconds. The second shock was of a like voltage and was applied for 16 seconds. The third shock was reduced to 2,000 volts and held for 14 seconds. The fourth shock was also of 2,000 volts but was applied for eight seconds, only. Douglass was pronounced dead at 7.09 o'clock, or exactly 7 minutes from the time he entered the execution room.

The crime for which Douglass was convicted was a most revolting one. He entered the cabin of Joseph Smith and wife, an aged couple who lived in a cabin near Webster, in Westmoreland County. His purpose was robbery. He was discovered by Mrs. Smith who fought desperately to save the small savings of her husband. Seizing an ax she struck blindly at her assailant and inflicted a deep cut in his right shoulder. With the butt of his revolver Douglass knocked the aged woman down and then shot her husband to death. He escaped to West Virginia. His coat and shirt, cut through the right shoulder, were found and in this manner his identity was established. He was arrested in West Virginia, returned to Greensburg and tried and convicted. Following the trial he escaped from jail, but was re-captured a week later. Last week he was removed to Rockview. He went to the electric chair without offering the slightest resistance.

Trout Fishing for Movies.

A moving-picture photographer, of Pittsburgh, was in Centre County last week endeavoring to secure pictures of the forest fires that had been raging on the mountains, and after he completed his work came to Bellefonte and conceived the idea of getting a good moving picture of catching one of the big trout for which the Centre County streams are famous. As luck would have it, Cyril Moerschbacher had landed a sixteen-inch beauty, and this trout was to be made the "goat" of a "staged" picture.

With Moerschbacher and Clayton Brown he drove up Spring creek to an ideal location, where he elected to stage the picture. He set up his machine, and in order to get a proper focus had Moerschbacher make dummy casts into the flowing waters. Just as he got the machine ready to begin grinding he told Moerschbacher to get the sixteen-inch trout out of the bucket and stage, it but he was too late, for on the second a monster trout took the bait, and then the real sport began.

He started to grind, and he ground away for ten minutes before Moerschbacher succeeded in landing his trout, which, when measured, proved to be twenty-two inches long and weighed four pounds.

Mrs. W. B. A. Rockey Dead.

Mrs. Clarissa Rockey, wife of William B. A. Rockey, of near Tylersville, died on Saturday afternoon, May 13th, at one o'clock, of paralysis. She was a daughter of Jacob and Mary Rishel. She is survived by two brothers: W. H Rishel and D. D. Rishel, and two sisters, Mrs. Calvin Crebs of Madisonburg, and Mrs. Joanna Jackson, of Tylersville.
